

Elek Straub has resigned

Budapest – December 5, 2006 – Magyar Telekom (Reuters: NYSE: MTA.N, BÉT: MTEL.BU and Bloomberg: NYSE: MTA US, BÉT: MTELEKOM HB), the leading Hungarian telecommunications service provider today announces that after 11 years, Magyar Telekom’s Chairman-CEO is leaving. At the Board of Directors meeting held today, Elek Straub resigned from the CEO position and his Board membership. The Company’s Board of Directors appointed Christopher Mattheisen Chief Executive Officer as of December 06.

Magyar Telekom’s Board of Directors held a meeting today. Among several items, the Board discussed and – based on the Auditor’s supportive statement – submitted to the General Meeting to be held on December 21 the financial statements closing business year 2005 and the proposal regarding dividend payment. (A separate press release is being published about the Board’s decisions).

Finally, the Board discussed and approved Elek Straub’s resignation from the CEO position and his Board membership, and appointed Christopher Mattheisen Chief Executive Officer of Magyar Telekom with effect of December 06.

Magyar Telekom’s resigning Chairman-CEO, Elek Straub made the following comment about the appointment: "I worked with Chris for close to four years between September 2002 and June 2006, when he was the Chief Officer in charge of the company’s Fix-line Services Line of Business. Thus I can assure everyone that he shall be a capable leader of Magyar Telekom. Let me take this opportunity to wish him a lot of success!"

Previous organizational and personnel decisions adopted by the Company’s management and Board of Directors, coupled with the Board’s resolution adopted today related to the closing of business year 2005 have solved a problem that has seriously burdened the company’s operations. The Board of Directors expects that the Auditor will issue an unqualified opinion and support the approval of the books by the General Meeting, enabling the Company to start business year 2007 with the momentum expected by shareholders.

Commenting his resignation, Elek Straub said: "Magyar Telekom is a well-structured organization based on a solid foundation. Not even the protracted investigation could cause it stagger, since at the end of 2006, we are closing one of the most successful years of the company’s history. I am proud of this outstanding achievement for which, as well as the 11 successful years behind us I would like to express my appreciation to my colleagues. In the coming years I would like to see that both the owners and management can concentrate on the company’s growth exclusively, instead of personnel issues triggered by the expiry of my contract hardly more a than a year from now. This is why I made my decision."

Vice-Chairman of Magyar Telekom’s Board of Directors, Horst Hermann has quoted the following from the Board resolution about Elek Straub’s resignation:

"Elek Straub leaves behind a company that has nothing in common with the one he took over back in 1995. He transformed an obsolete-structured company often criticized by its customers into a state-of-the-art, modern telecommunications company, the performance of which is outstanding even in international comparison. His professional knowledge and the respect he enjoys helped the company overcome many difficulties. I would like to thank him for his work and for the successes of the past decade."

As of 1995, Elek Straub has been the CEO of Magyar Telekom (formerly called Matáv) and also the Chairman – as of 1996 – of Magyar Telekom Group (Matáv Group), the leading provider of fix, mobile and Internet services in Hungary. Under his leadership, a series of decisions have been made that had fundamental impact on the company’s development: multiple rounds of privatization, the Company’s initial public offering, introduction of state-of-the-art telecommunications technologies, the start of international expansion, establishing a broad national portfolio of subsidiaries through significant acquisitions in Hungary and most recently, the full-scale re-branding and comprehensive introduction of the T-brand.

On three occasions – in 1997, 1998 and 1999 – Magyar Telekom received the Stock Exchange Issuer of the Year award. In 1998, the Company was granted the Financial Times Global Telecommunications Award and in 2002 Euromoney's Award for Good Corporate Governance.

In 1999 Elek Straub was elected „Manager of the Year” in Hungary and in 2000, CEO of the year in emerging markets. In 2004, recognizing Elek Straub's efforts towards the strengthening of German-Hungarian relations, the President of the Federal Republic of Germany, Johannes Rau awarded him the 1st Class Cross of Distinction of the Order of the Federal Republic of Germany.

During the same year, in recognition of his internationally esteemed contribution to the development of the Hungarian information society and telecommunications, the President of Hungary, Ferenc Mádl awarded Mr. Straub the Order of Merit of the Republic of Hungary, Officer's Cross.

Mr. Straub has been Chairman of the German-Hungarian Chamber of Commerce since 2004.
